To whom it may concern,

It is my pleasure to highly commend Sarah Collins for wonderful contribution to both community and university life.

I have known Sarah during her study at Australian Catholic University. She has been an exemplary student who has demonstrated an absolute commitment to all her pursuits at ACU. Sarah has been rewarded for her academic endeavour with excellent results, but more importantly she has been inspirational to her peers and staff for her willingness to participate in Community Engagement programs.

Sarah is a young woman of integrity with a strong sense of social justice, equity and is passionate in her actions to make a positive difference in the lives of people who experience social exclusion. Sarah has volunteered her time over the past 2 years to support the educational needs of others and has been a leader in community capacity building in programs such as the Richmond Tutoring Program. She readily demonstrates creative responses when reaching out to the needs of children from refugee backgrounds and those who experience disadvantage. Sarah represents ACU with pride and all who meet her would have a great first impression of our university, due to her readiness to engage in such a gracious and helpful manner. Sarah embodies a true reflection of social justice in action and lives the mission of ACU

It is wonderful to bear witness to Sarah's delightful and engaging character. She is able to instantly build rapport with others and respond in a positive and respectful manner to a variety of difficult circumstances. Sarah is exceptional on so many levels, she has an undeniable generosity of spirit, always willing to extend herself and has a natural gift for teaching and community engagement. She would be an outstanding asset to any team, I would certainly want her on mine.
